

Letter from Jesus

Dear beloved child,

I know sometimes you feel troubled. I know you feel weak. I see you at times trembling with fear and confusion about your life. I know that you often feel lonely and afraid. So I want to tell you now, my dear child, your suffering reaches my ears and heart. You may think that I don't hear your cry, but know this: not only do I hear your cry of anguish, but I cry with you, and our cry reaches my Father in heaven.

Your pain and suffering never, not in a single instant, goes unheard. Every tear and every moment of worry pierces my heart. My heart bleeds from all the sadness you feel.

Know that all your pain I have taken upon myself. Even before it hurt you, it was placed in my wounded side for all eternity. All your suffering, shame and fear, I took upon Me so that you could be at peace with my Father. I have done this for all humankind. For this, my Father lifted me up and glorified Me, his Son, above all others. This reason, above all, is why I came.

I want to give you the one thing that I am sure will help you in any uncertain moment: my peace. I give you my peace, with nothing held back. I give you the peace that comes only from my Spirit. My Spirit tells you who I am and what I did for you, and all the splendor and majesty of God is found within my peace.

My peace sets you free. Do not fear.

My peace heals you. Be strong.

Trust in my peace. Receive my peace.

It is my love poured out for you from before time itself and continuing eternally.

Rest, beloved child, in the loving arms of my peace.
